Obituary.

SCHLOTTERBECK. In memory of AUGUSTA SCHLOTTERBECK, who died September 10, 1896. A friend,, an associate, a member, and one who was loved by all who knew her, one and whose so sudden and untimely death leaves in our hearts a sting of sorrow that can never be healed, and we mean the loss of her who was to us a sister. How, when we assemble, she is missing, yet it was the will of God, which must be done, so He took to Him the pure soul to live in that world where there is no surrow. To the sister and brothers we express our heartfelt sympathy, and are certain that her death will remain in our memories forever, for she was loved by us as a sister.

ever, for she was loved by us as a sister. MAYFLOWER SOCIAL CLUB.

In Memoriam. ORINSON. In sacred remembrance of our loving daughter and granddaughter, BESSIE AN-ROBINSON, who died two years ago today. October 3, 1894.

toker 3, 1894.
Ressie, thou wert mild and lovely,
Gentle as the summer breeze;
Pleasant as the air of heaven.
When it floats among the trees. "Gone, but not forgotten."
BY HER MOTHER AND GRANDPARENTS

OUDER. In memory of DAVID W. SOUDER, who departed this life one year ago today, October "Gone, but not forgotten."
BY HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN. STRATON. Written by her devoted sister, Mrs. M. C. Meegher, of Washington, D. C., to the memory of Mrs. JULIA R. STRATON, who died at Atlanta, Ga., July 14, 1896.
Late was the hour, and lonely seemed the home; A silence reigned as the all nature slept; The hush of death seemed fett within the room Where enxious loved ones patient vigils kept;

But haste thee now for back the dawn is breaking Thy friends await thee on the other shore; Thy sleep is sweet, but sweeter far thy waking Where pain nor death can come to thee no mo

Above thy tomb the morning choir shall sing Their sweetes mat as from the branches high; Ceme follow me where there is always spring

And life eternal,—never more to die.

MRS. M. C. MEAGHER, 18 E st. n.w.
